Roger Williams Inn is one of Green Lake Conference Center's iconic, historical treasures. But after 80 years, its once beautiful exterior has visibly deteriorated and its interior needs renovation.

Lawsonia Country Club jewel

Roger Williams Inn was originally named Lawsonia Country Club Hotel. It was constructed by the H.O. Stone Development Company of Chicago in 1930. The five story hotel was built with lake views on three sides and the exterior was faced with brick painted white with green trim. Almost all of its 81 guest rooms faced the lake, and it had a gorgeous lobby. The jewel of their development, it served as both hotel and clubhouse for the 18 hole Lawsonia Links Golf Course.

American Baptist favorite

When the Northern Baptists bought the Lawsonia estate in 1943, they renamed the hotel Roger Williams Inn after the English Protestant theologian (c. 1603-1683), an early proponent of religious freedom and the separation of church and state. Williams started the first Baptist church in America--First Baptist Church of Providence, RI. Roger Williams Inn continued to be a favorite place to stay for decades. It was the focal point of many pictures and post cards!

Green Lake Conference Center classic

Today, many of our guests prefer the charm of Roger Williams Inn over our newer hotels. We want to restore its exterior and renovate its interior so that this classic hotel will continue to be a wonderful place to renew guests for decades to come!

'Restoration of Roger'

Restoration from roof to basement is creating 76 mid-priced rooms for families and individuals. Work on the outside spaces will create more flow and connecting of walkways to beautiful points of interest. Focus will be on creating spaces where people can stop and visit or enjoy the quiet. The project cost is approximately $2.1 million. We are committed to completing the project debt-free with the help of staff, work groups, volunteers and the generosity of donors.

The work is following a cohesive, sequential plan, allowing for the use of the rooms during the summer. Masonry work has begun, and seven rooms have been renovated!
